The Legend of the Lonely Buddhas

The Legend of the Lonely Buddhas

Now listen to the legend of the Lonely Buddhas:

The Sage of Vedeha,¹ his body bent, asked the Thus-Gone-One dwelling in Jetavana, "Indeed there are those [called] the Lonely Buddhas;² through what causes do they become [so], Wise One?" (1) [82]³

Then spoke the Omniscient, Outstanding, Great Sage, to lucky Ānanda with [his] honeyed voice, "Who performed service among former⁴ Buddhas, [but] didn't get freed in their dispensations,⁵ (2) [83]

because that is the means to awaken, wise, they with sharp knowing, through knowledge and power, because of [their] wishes [and] also great strength, reach the Awakening of Lonely [Buddhas]. (3) [84]

In every world, with the exception of me, there is no equal for the Lonely Buddhas.

I will describe a piece of the excellent character⁶ of those Buddhas, the Great Sages." (4) [85]

All of you, with well-pleased minds,⁷ aspiring for the unsurpassed medicine, hear, by yourselves, the excellent sayings, which are short and sweet,⁸

¹The Sage of Videha is Ānanda, the Buddha's cousin and personal attendant

²paccekabuddhā

³This and the following two verses correspond to the first three verses of Buddhāpadāna, above, where they are however found only in the BJTS edition; here, PTS agrees with BJTS in including them. They are in the more elaborate meter, with eleven syllables per foot, that characterizes the entire Paccekabuddhāpadāna (and the sutta from which it in turn draws, SN I.3), so I have translated accordingly.

of those Great Sages who were Lonely Buddhas, (5) [86] which are explanations of generations of Lonely Buddhas who gathered together, and a story of dispassion for danger,⁹ and likewise [how] they achieved Awakening. (6) [87]

With awareness detached from passionate things, mind not delighting in delights in the world, abandoning obstacles, throbbing conquered, thereby indeed¹⁰ they achieved Awakening. (7) [88]

Putting away the stick among all beings, not causing harm to a single one of them, with a loving mind, friendly, compassionate, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (8) [89]¹¹

Putting away the stick among all beings, not causing harm to a single one of them, not wishing for sons, let alone¹² companions, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (9) [90]¹³

Affections arise for one with connections; this dis-ease proceeds in line with affections. Seeing the danger that's born of affections, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (10) [91]¹⁴

Feeling compassion for friends [and] companions, one puts off the goal, mind tied [to their problems]; seeing that fearfulness in intimacy, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (11) [92]¹⁵

One who is attentive to sons and to wives is entangled like a large bamboo [thicket]. Not stuck to others, like a new bamboo shoot,

 $^{^9}$ ādīnavo yañ ca, BJTS Sinhala gloss kāmayen, i.e., "the danger" is (as ādīnavo connotes) passion itself

¹⁰reading tath' eva with BJTS for PTS tatth' eva ("there indeed")

¹¹BJTS adds the Pāli note: ayam gāthā marammapothake ca suttanipāte ca na vijjjati, "this verse is not found in the Burmese edition nor [lit., "and"] in Suttanipāta," referring to the remarkable fact that even though the following text is lifted almost verbatim from the "Rhinocerous Horn" sutta of the Sutta-nipāta (I.3), corresponding as indicated in the footnotes on the following verses, this present verse in the Paccekabuddhāpadāna, though it follows the format of the Sutta-nipāta sutta, is not found in that sutta (nor, apparently, in Burmese manuscripts of Apadāna).

one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (12) $[93]^{16}$

Just as a deer, not ensnared, goes for pasture in the forest according to [its] wishes, a knowing man looks after independence; one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (13) $[94]^{17}$

Resting, standing, going, wandering there is [some] invitation amidst [one's] companions. Looking after independence [most] don't want, 18 one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (14) [95]¹⁹

Amidst [one's] companions there is delighting in sports, and there is abundant love for sons. [Though] hating separation from what's held dear, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (15) $[96]^{20}$

Global in outlook,²¹ one is causing no harm, being happy with whatever comes one's way; an endurer of troubles, not stiff with fear, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (16) $[97]^{22}$

Even some who have gone forth are ill-disposed; likewise [some] householders living in the house. Being unconcerned about others' children, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (17) $[98]^{23}$

Shedding the attributes of life in the house like an ebony²⁴ tree whose leaves have fallen, the hero severs the ties to household life; one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (18) $[99]^{25}$

If one should obtain a clever companion, a co-wanderer who lives well [and] is wise, after having overcome every trouble, one would wander with that one, thrilled [and] mindful. (19) [100]²⁶

If one should not get a clever companion, a co-wanderer who lives well [and] is wise, [then] like a king quitting a conquered kingdom, one should wander alone, like tuskers in the woods.²⁷ (20) [101]²⁸

Truly we're praising success with companions; those²⁹ who are better or equal should be served. Not getting those, not enjoying sinful things, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (21) [102]³⁰

Seeing shiny [bangles made out] of [fine] gold, which have been well-made by the son of a smith, banging together when two are on [one] arm one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (22) [103]³¹

"Like that, with another,³² there will be for me, meaningless chatter or ill-tempered [bad speech];" seeing that as a danger for the future, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (23) [104]³³

Sense pleasures are varied, sweet and delightful; [they] churn up the mind with [their] varying form. Seeing danger in the strands of sense pleasure, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (24) [105]³⁴

"For me this is calamity, misfortune; a sickness, a [sharp] arrow, a fearsome thing."
Seeing this fear in the strands of sense pleasure, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (25) [106]³⁵

[Freezing] cold and [scorching] heat, hunger and thirst, wind [and] hot weather and gadflies [and] serpents: having vanquished even all of those [problems,] one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (26) [107]³⁶

Just as a noble elephant with a fullgrown spotted body, abandoning the herd,

²⁷lit., "like a mātaṅga elephant in the woods (or forest)"

²⁸ this corresponds to SN, v. 46 but the latter does not diverge from the standard refrain, reading as the fourth foot: "one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn"

"One who is fond of company cannot touch³⁸ liberation, even temporarily." Heeding with care [those] words of the Sun's Kinsman,39 one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (28) [109]⁴⁰

Freed from [incessant] wrangling of opinions, gaining the way, getting the path, [with the thought,] "I know I am not to be led by others," one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (29) [110]⁴¹

Freed from greed, without deceit, [and] thirst-free, lacking hypocrisy, fault- and folly-free, 42 becoming intention-free in the whole world, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (30) $[111]^{43}$

Avoiding, not consorting with an evil companion, who is blind44 to the goal, who gets into trouble, who intends [things], is slothful, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (31) $[112]^{45}$

One should consort with [someone] noble, a friend, very learned, Dhamma-bearer, skilled preacher. Discerning [one's own] goals, removing [all] doubt, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (32) $[113]^{46}$

Not embellishing, not looking after sport nor⁴⁷ delights, pleasures, happiness in the world; abstaining from adornment, 48 telling the truth,

Norman, in his SN tr. (p. 9) reads vibhūsanā and omits otthānā

one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (33) [114]⁴⁹

Having given up sense pleasures completely, [including] sons and wives, father [and] mother, wealth and grain and also [all one's] relatives, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (34) [115]⁵⁰

Mindful, discerning, "this is an attachment; the happiness here is trifling, little fun; here there is much suffering, this is a shaft,"⁵¹ one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (35) [116]⁵²

Having broken to bits [one's own] hindrances,⁵³ like a fish breaking a net in the water, like fire that does not return to what is burnt, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (36) [117]⁵⁴

With eyes cast downward, not [just] goofing around, having senses guarded and mind protected, not filled with desire,⁵⁵ not burning [as though fire,] one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (37) [118]⁵⁶

Discarding the attributes of household life, just like a coral tree⁵⁷ with fallen-off leaves, departing [the house] wearing the saffron robe, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (38) [119]⁵⁸

Not⁵⁹ greedy for [good] tastes, not wavering, not feeding others, on unbroken begging rounds,⁶⁰ with a mind that's not bound to this clan or that, one should wander alone, like a rhino's horn. (39) [120]⁶¹
