[433. {436.}¹ Kalambadāyaka²]

The Sambuddha³ named Romasa⁴ was living on a mountainside. I gave bindweed⁵ to that [Buddha], [feeling well-]pleased by [my] own hands. (1) [4679]

In the ninety-four aeons since I gave that donation back then, I've come to know no bad rebirth: that's the fruit of [giving] bindweed. (2) [4680]

My defilements are [now] burnt up; all [new] existence is destroyed. Like elephants with broken chains, I am living without constraint. (3) [4681]

Being in Best Buddha's presence was a very good thing for me. The three knowledges are attained; [I have] done what the Buddha taught! (4) [4682]

The four analytical modes, and these eight deliverances, six special knowledges mastered, [I have] done what the Buddha taught! (5) [4683]

Thus indeed Venerable Kalambadāyaka Thera spoke these verses.

The legend of Kalambadāyaka Thera is finished.

 $^{^1\!}A pad\bar{a}na \ numbers \ provided \ in \ \{fancy \ brackets\} \ correspond \ to \ the \ BJTS \ edition, \ which \ contains \ more \ individual \ poems \ than \ does \ the \ PTS \ edition \ dictating \ the \ main \ numbering \ of \ this \ translation.$

²"Stalk of Sugar-Cane-er" BJTS reads Ucchukhaṇḍika ("a broken bit/a stick of sugar-cane")

³BJTS takes him as a Lonely (pacceka, Sinh. pasē) Buddha, even though the text is unambiguous in labelling him a Sambuddha.

⁴see above, note to #226, v. 4 (BJTS v. 2404) for a discussion of possible meanings and details of the use of this name elsewhere in Apadāna.

⁵kalamba, RD draws attention to Skt. kalambika, kalambuka = convulvulus repens, bindweed, but there are other possibilities including the tree menispermum calumba (but its fruits are poisonous/only used in controlled medical usages, unlikely?) and (following BJTS Sinh. gloss on [169] and [4005]) Anthocephalus Cadamba (Rub.), Sinh. kalamba. BJTS Sinh. gloss here is vilapalā, "edible greens from a lake[side]," which accords with the context whatever the actual plant was (or would be called in English). An alternative, and reasonable translation might be "wild greens" or "edible greens"
